

Philanthropic initiatives report

Q2' 2023

Bridging the digital divide for nonprofits

On May 21, 2021, we established our philanthropic initiative with the aim of bridging the digital divide for nonprofits.

Since founding monday.com, we have been committed to giving back and creating an impact. This commitment has only been strengthened after going public and anchoring our vision as part of our 20F.

Our philanthropic initiative is currently centered around two pillars that enable us to take our expertise and product and bring them to life in the nonprofit world: Digital Lift and Emergency Response Team (ERT).

In this report, we will share the impact of these pillars.

The Emergency Response Team scales the impact of aid organizations during their response to disasters

The team provides on-the-ground support and complete digital transformation during the disaster stage, as well as in preparedness and recovery. The team is run by two people, and its work is largely executed with the support of monday.com volunteers. These volunteers are ready to travel to crisis areas as emergencies occur and support the digital needs as they arise.

Geographical spread of projects

Key collaborative projects

Digitizing the management of 94 shelters

Latin America refugee crisis

In this project we worked with Télécoms Sans Frontières (TSF), the world's first NGO focusing on emergency-response technologies.

monday.com's Emergency Response Team built a complete digital solution for data collection and management of relief support. This allows TSF to provide tailored aid and information to potentially 360,000 migrants and refugees, enabling them a safer journey.

The impact:

- Digitized the management of 94 migrant shelters
- Possibly enabling safer journeys for up to 360,000 asylum seekers per year
- Trained a team of 6 TSF staff on the monday.com platform

The ERT working with TSF in Mexico to visualize the path of the migrants throughout Mexico

The ERT working with the IRC team to design and build the information dissemination workflow

Dissemination of critical information to newcomers

Afghan and Ukrainian refugee crisis

In this project we worked with the International Rescue Committee (IRC), an international NGO that works in over 40 countries to aid people affected by humanitarian crises survive, recover, and rebuild their lives.

monday.com's Emergency Response Team designed a solution that allows the IRC to efficiently create and disseminate time-sensitive information and provide Ukrainian and Afghan displaced people with relevant guidance for their settlement process.

The impact:

- Trained a team of 4 IRC staff
- Since the monday.com training, the IRC Facebook pages for Afghans and Ukrainians reached 425,391 users with timely, accurate, and linguistically appropriate information about resettlement services and life in the U.S.

Reducing the impact of floods

Floods in Assam State in India

In this project we worked with The Indian Red Cross Society Assam state, a voluntary emergency humanitarian organization with a network of over 700 branches throughout India.

monday.com's Emergency Response Team partnered with two tech companies to develop and pilot a comprehensive flood early warning system, combining weather monitoring, mass notifications, and centralized communication using monday.com as an aggregator.

The impact:

- Developed a flood early warning system activation tool for a district of one million people
- Trained a team of 4 Red Cross staff

Our ongoing projects

There are 5 ongoing projects in different stages of progress, expected to be completed by the end of the year. These projects are located in Ethiopia, Panama, Caribbean, Paraguay, and other regions, and include:

Designing a comprehensive digital solution enabling a major UN organization to gather and visualize data from disaster zones, including needs assessments and situational analysis reports. The information will then be centralized on the monday.com platform, fostering better collaboration and response during emergency activation.

Planning an early warning system and activation workflow for the management and monitoring of droughts and floods in South America and creating a cross organizational digital tool for several disaster response organizations operating in the country.

Designing a digital platform for a major disaster management organization in the Caribbean for coordination, management, collaboration, and activation in the region.

Designing a digital platform on monday.com to coordinate flight and cargo operations for a major disaster responding INGO to service hundreds of other frontline organizations. It will also streamline the deployment of aid workers and essential relief items to those in need.

Partnering with leading foundations, UN agencies, and private businesses worldwide to enable collaboration between the private sector and disaster response organizations to coordinate the sending of relevant aid from the private sector to disaster zones.

Digital Lift's mission is to close the digital divide in the nonprofit sector worldwide. We do this by empowering nonprofits to become more efficient in what they do through the adoption of technology
